YOUR CAREER SUCCESS

At the Rowe School of Business, all degrees are welcome. Increasingly, students with a background in science and health studies have identified the value of an MBA to their pursuit of career goals.

Career goals such as influencing health policy, working for pharmaceutical companies, administering large health care organizations, leading health-focused not-for-profits or contributing to the development of new and innovative products and systems related to individual and community health are just some of the aspirations that lead students with a background in science to the Corporate Residency MBA program.
